I have just read the insert LG & E sent along with their bill. Evidently they are requesting a rate increase, although you couldn't tell by the letter, as it was preoccupied with all the various rate definitions & their acronyms (doublespeak?). However, I believe what I saw was a request for rate increases of $7.34 Residential (me), $13.24 Commercial, etc.

I'm convinced their executives' paychecks aren't diminishing any because of this need, nor are all their shareholder dividend checks. And if memory serves, this profit now goes to Europe. With the devalued dollar over there, they don't need any more revenue; they have made more already simply because of the exchange rate.
